

Legacy Application Decommissioning

A survey of IBM i user organizations by SoftLanding Systems

Q Does your organization have any legacy IT applications (either on IBM i or other platforms) that are kept running because the historical data is still useful?

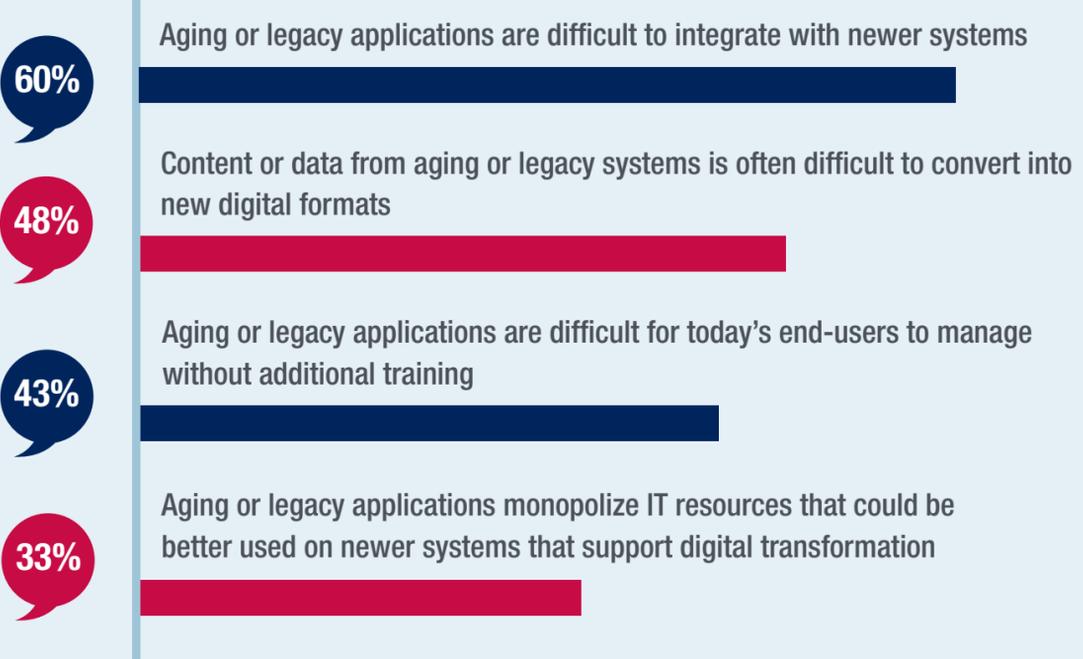

Q Is there a person or team in your organization that is officially responsible for identifying software applications that are close to end-of-life and for overseeing the application retirement/decommissioning process?

Q Thinking about legacy applications that exist within your organization - those applications that are being retained for their historical information, but no longer being updated with live data - are they

Q In what ways do you feel that retaining aging or legacy applications holds back digital transformation initiatives?

To find out how SoftLanding Systems could help with your legacy application decommissioning strategy, contact softlanding.uk@macro4.com or visit www.softlanding.com/decommissioning

